Historical Commission receives $100K in state funding

Restoration and preservation to commence

By JULIE FENNELL

WILMINGTON - When Governor Deval Patrick signed the Commonwealth's 2009 Fiscal Year budget last week, the Wilmington Historical Commission received the good news it had been hoping for. The Commission received $100,000 in state funding, which will be used for the restoration and preservation of the historic Butters farmhouse.

"State Representative Jim Miceli called me with the good news that we had acquired $100,000," said Historical Commission Chair Carolyn Harris. "It was reduced from the original $200,000 that the House had passed, but it wasn't cut out of the budget. People realized the importance of historic preservation. I was thrilled that Representative Miceli, with the support of State Senator Bruce Tarr and State Representative Charles Murphy, was able to secure the funding. The Historical Commission is extremely grateful to Representative Miceli for his hard work."

In the spring of 2005, the Historical Commission first learned that the property was in jeopardy of destruction. At Wilmington's Town Meeting on April 22, 2006 citizens voted overwhelmingly (225 to 8) in favor of purchasing the Butters farmhouse to save it from destruction or from being moved from its existing location at 165 Chestnut Street. The first period home (circa 1682) is Wilmington's second oldest residence.

The Historical Commission was able to obtain a $70,000 grant from the Massachusetts Historical Commission, and through the efforts of

Local Heroes responds to Fallujah fire

By CHARITY LEGVOLD

WILMINGTON - Packages shipped out by Local Heroes in the last two weeks took on a new urgency after many troops lost everything in a fire in Fallujah several weeks ago.

Forty soldiers lost everything including their clothing, toiletries, photos, personal keepsakes from home and entertainment items such as books, CDs, movies, etc. A total of 90 Marines of the LIMA Company lost many of their belongings in the fire that tore through their forward operating base.

Sergeant Galvin Murphy, 1st Marine Division, son of Galvin and Barbara Murphy; and Lance Corporal Bob Rossi of the 6th Marine LIMA Company are among the Local Heroes in the region that were affected by the fire. They are sharing packages from Local Heroes to help others who lost so much.

Local Heroes founder, Wilmington Veterans' Agent Lou Cimaglia, said that Local Heroes immediately started sending many basic camping, survival and comfort items such as utility knives, flashlights, towels, socks and T-shirts, air mattresses and even some small electronics such as CD players to help pass the downtime.

Cimaglia is grateful for the sizable contributions that several organizations earmarked for those soldiers who lost everything. . Thanks to the efforts of Rossi's father, Bob,

The damage that struck the Silver Lake area from the short-lived storm last Saturday was devastating for a number of families. The Murphy's Silver Lake Avenue home, for instance, was hit by a huge tree. The tree crashed through the roof and came down right on the master bedroom's bed and literally split the headboard. Had it happened two hours later than it did, the tragedy might have been far worse. Courtesy photos

WILMINGTON - Wilmington resident Kevin Caira recently received a very rare and significant honor when he was decorated by the Republic of Italy with the Star of Italian Solidarity at the rank of Cavaliere and thus inducted into the American Society of the Italian Legions of Merit.

The Italian Consulate formally honored Caira with a presentation of a certificate signed by the Italian President and a reception at the Consulate located at 600 Atlantic Avenue in Boston on Italian National Day. June 2, 2008 formally marked 62 years of the Italian Republic's independence.

Educational Director Carlo Cipollone presented Caira's name to Loborio Stellino, the Consul General of Italy, and together they formally filed papers nominating Caira for one of the three highest honors offered to Italian Americans.

In the nomination letter he submitted for Caira, Cipollone cited many reasons for honoring Caira. Along with their parents Scott and Anita, the family recently returned home to Wilmington after living in England and traveling around Europe over the last two years; visiting Poland twice, exploring London, Paris, Barcelona, Stockholm, Ireland, Scotland, and Italy.

Assessor's office is ready to assist

WILMINGTON - Fuel and grocery bills and other basic cost of living expenses are skyrocketing, but some property tax relief may be available for qualified Wilmington residents.

According to Chief Assessor Skip Moynihan, the Assessor's office is spending some of its summer hours assisting residents in determining whether they qualify for property tax exemptions or deferrals according to State guidelines provided by Secretary of the Commonwealth William Francis Galvin's Citizen Information Service.

According to the Citizen Information Service website (www.sec.state.ma.us/cis/cispt x/ptxidx.htm), "A tax exemption is a discharge from the obligation to pay all or a portion of a tax. Exemptions are conferred by the legislature on particular categories of persons or properties." Property tax relief may be available (upon qualification) for categories of elderly, blind persons, surviving spouses or surviving minor children or elderly, and veterans.

The Citizen Information Service Website states, "Senior citizens may be eligible for exemptions on their property tax or for deferral of payment of all or part of their property tax. There are stringent eligibility requirements for these plans, which are administered by the board of assessors in each community." All applicants must qualify under certain estate, income, ownership, and residency requirements. Additionally, there are other qualification requirements for the categories under which residents may apply.

Applications for the exemptions, (most exemption clauses are for $500), must be filed annually with the local assessors in the city or town on or before December 15th or three months after the tax bills are mailed, whichever is later.

For more information about the tax relief programs, Moynihan encourages residents to contact the Wilmington assessor's office at (978) 658-3675. Additional information about the tax relief can be found by calling the Department of Revenue's Property Tax Bureau at (617)

Green in the kitchen

Zap the germs in that sponge

Part of going green is reducing the amount of waste you generate in the course of daily life.

A good portion of the population has grown accustomed to a disposable mentality, merely tossing items into the trash when they no longer meet their needs, even if these items are not yet past their prime.

Sometimes the discarding of items is based upon the supposed health risks with continued use. Case in point, the kitchen sponge. Sponges are workhorses in the kitchen, scouring silverware, plates and glasses that do not end up in the dishwasher.

However, the average kitchen sponge can contain up to a million more germs than a toilet seat -- even though the sponge continually comes in contact with soap and water. As a result, people tend to discard a number of sponges per month.

Since many sponges are made with plastics, a lot of trash is being generated that may not decompose in landfills.

However, you can prevent waste and germs at the same time. Simply wring out the sponge after washing it and microwave it for 30 to 60 seconds. The microwave will zap the germs.

WILMINGTON - Fuel and grocery bills and other basic cost of living expenses are skyrocketing, but some property tax relief may be available for qualified Wilmington residents.

According to Chief Assessor Skip Moynihan, the Assessor's office is spending some of its summer hours assisting residents in determining whether they qualify for property tax exemptions or deferrals according to State guidelines provided by Secretary of the Commonwealth William Francis Galvin's Citizen Information Service.

According to the Citizen Information Service website (www.sec.state.ma.us/cis/cispt x/ptxidx.htm), "A tax exemption is a discharge from the obligation to pay all or a portion of a tax. Exemptions are conferred by the legislature on particular categories of persons or properties." Historical Commission receives $100K in state funding

Representative Miceli and State Senator Tarr, the Town of Wilmington received a legislative appropriation of $450,000 to purchase the historic farmhouse and the surrounding property. The property also holds historic significance as the discovery site of the Baldwin apple in the late eighteenth century. A monument was erected on the property in 1895 commemorating the discovery.

The $450,000 appropriation enabled the Town to purchase the property at no cost to Wilmington taxpayers. After the historic property was saved, the next challenge was raising funds to cover the extensive restoration and preservation efforts. Local businesses, organizations and residents donated funds to help the cause.

In 2007, the Historical Commission hired a consultant specializing in first period homes to conduct a historical structures report. The report is critical in serving as a guideline for work to be done.

"There is a tremendous amount of work to be done to shore up the building, expose the historical elements, and bring it up to a standard that's livable," said Harris.

With $93,000 raised through a grant and community contributions, the Historical Commission had some funds available, but not nearly enough to fully restore the property. Three centuries has taken its toll on the home and much work is needed to structurally restore the property.

"I watched the progress of fundraising and I saw that the Historical Commission needed help to keep it going," recalled Representative Miceli. "I went to my colleagues at the House and Senate and it didn't take much arm twisting. I told them that it's a great project and it just needs help getting done."

Last week's $100,000 appropriation finally provided the green light for restoration work to begin.

"With these funds, we'll be able to move ahead with plans to have professionals and the Shawsheen Tech High School students work on refurbishing the historic home," said Harris. "What could be better than having an educational partnership which will teach our students how things were built three centuries ago, and also teach them how to restore and preserve historic property? What an opportunity for them to be able to work on it and restore it for another 300 years!"

The Town will be putting together an RFP in the upcoming weeks and the goal is to begin work on the Butters farmhouse by the end of the summer. The Historical Commission's goal is to preserve the building and have a family/caretaker live on the property, which will be accessible to the public at least twice a year.

"If you lose your history, you lose who you are as a community," said Harris. "The Butters farmhouse is pretty much the way it was hundreds of years ago. It's the cornerstone of history for Wilmington. It's weathered every storm and shows us how people lived throughout the centuries."

She continued, "When you lose something, you are left with only pictures. When it's gone, it's gone. But this historic gem is still standing and it's here for us to learn from. It's worthy of preserving. We're thankful to the town, Town Manager Mike Caira and the town officials for their ongoing support. We're especially thankful for Jim Miceli's tireless efforts."

"I feel delighted that we got $100,000 for the project, and I'm glad that I put it in the budget when I did," shared Miceli. "This week we learned of a $7 billion deficit with the Big Dig project and so now everyone is scrambling for money."

In other budget line items, Miceli was also able to secure $800,000 for a dialysis center at Tewksbury Hospital, and $83,000 for a summer camp in Tewksbury for special needs children. He was also successful in getting funding for the continuation of the cancer study in Wilmington to examine the incidences of childhood cancer within the community.

"It was a good year for Wilmington and Tewksbury despite the economy," said Miceli.

Julie Gustafson and Carolyn Rooney placed bags of donated goods at the alter of the Abundant Life Church during the summer camp program. The items will be sent to soldiers overseas.

Italian government honors Caira strongly supported the creation of youth associations. By doing so he reached the goal of giving young generations a sense of belonging and knowledge of their origins. He successfully contributed to the funding of several important cultural, recreational and sport initiatives aimed at giving value and reinforcement to the large Italian community in Massachusetts. For all these reasons he is in an undisputed position of prestige within the community."

Caira's father, Aldo, was a past State President and a former National President of the Sons of Italy, and a recipient of the Star of Solidarity of the highest order. His Mother, Loretta, was one of three founders of the Wilmington Lodge. Caira followed proudly in the footsteps of both of his parents as he held many relevant local and national offices within the Sons of Italy: President of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, National Delegate, Chairman for Youth Lodges, Membership Commissioner, Chairman of the Future Good and Welfare of the Order.

Caira graduated from Wilmington High School and Boston State College. He worked 13 years at the State Treasurer's Office, and now works as Senior Retirement Counselor at the State Board of Retirement under the Administration of State Treasurer.

On Friday, June 13 Caira was honored again, this time by the Wilmington Sons of Italy, at a dinner reception for 200 guests at Casa di Fiore. The Consul requires a ceremony at the Consulate on Italian National Day and then a reception to be held in the honorees hometown with their friends and family and the local Lodge.

Caira was awed by the power of the presentations at both ceremonies. He said the rooms were so quiet you could hear a pin drop and that the Consul attended both ceremonies and explained in depth the tradition of the Stars of Solidarity, which have roots dating back to World War I when the Italian government wanted to honor soldiers with three different ranks of stars. Caira said the honors were discontinued for a while and when they resumed they were also designed to honor Italians and Italian Americans living around the world. To that end, consulates around the world submit nominations for these prestigious honors.

Caira's brother Michael, Wilmington's Town Manager, emceed the evening honoring his brother. In addition to presentations by the Consul General and the Educational Director, local Lodge President Charlie DeStefano welcomed guests, current President of the State Sons of Italy Florence Kane addressed guests, and Michael Newhouse, Chairman of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen, presented Caira with a key to the Town. Caira credited his sister, Michele Nortonen, as instrumental in bringing the whole evening together.

Caira described the award as a total surprise and said it was quite an honor.

"The award is not an individual award...I never would have received it if it weren't for the people who support the administration," Caira said. "It was always a team effort, a collaborative effort."

Caira mentioned teamwork in funding scholarships, in raising funds for charitable giving, and in the Commission for Social Justice where he worked on positive image campaigns to combat stereotyping and discrimination. Caira said they also worked to bring the culture and language into the school systems and brought Italian classes to Wilmington.

Caira considers the Sons of Italy to be a great organization to be part of. He encourages people to look at the work being done in the local Lodge and to multiply that by the 80 lodges in the State and the nearly 800 lodges nationally.

"I'm proud of my heritage, the support of my family and the local lodge," said Caira. "It is a great honor to receive this from the Italian government and is something I will always cherish and remember."

EMPLOYEE OR INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR?

In many fields, a large proportion of workers are considered independent contractors, even though their employers set their tasks and sometimes their hours as well. The advantage to the employer: the workers pay their own employment taxes, and the company does not.

Now, it seems that the Internal Revenue Service is going after companies that misclassify their workers. In particular, they are looking at those firms that issue 1099s (reports of miscellaneous income) listing payments as high as $25,000 or more to five or more workers with no other source of earned income. The states are expected to help provide ammunition for audits.

One information source: Form 8919 that workers could file with their tax return if they feel they've been misclassified. Filing the form also allows the worker to avoid paying self-employment taxes, but firms can claim precedent or an IRS ruling.

Will you be affected by an audit? Talk to the tax professionals at

OPINION

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor,

I would like to extend my deepest thanks to the South Tewksbury Fire and Police Department that came to our home on June 19, 2008 when my father Lawrence Moore, fell. They were truly amazing. Not only were they there helping to treat my father, they were also there helping my mother Debra with this tragic accident. My family truly appreciates their hard work and concern for other human beings.

We would like to take the time to specially thank Detective Brian O'Neil of the Tewksbury Police Department. He was not only there for my mother and family throughout the ordeal on June 19; but he was there for my family through the whole process. He made a phone call to check on my father and us. You do not find many people that put so much effort into just our thing. Once again we thank all of them for their help through these hard times.

Sincerely,
Amanda, Rebecca & Debra Moore
Tewksbury

Sincere appreciation

Dear Editor,

Elizabeth White and Family would like to publicly thank Lt. Chris Nee and personnel of the Wilmington Fire Department and Police Department for their kindness, compassion and expertise during our recent time of need. Our town is privileged to have such well prepared and caring personnel.

Gratefully,
The Whites

Foul odors

Dear Editor,

I recently visited my daughter and her family in Tewksbury and was appalled when I was sitting outside one evening and observed a very foul odor that nearly cut my airway. When I questioned what this was I was told it was from a local pig farm and you could smell it when the wind blows just right. It is located within one mile of a residential community, which has the pleasure of receiving this odor 24/7. I was also informed there are 900, plus or minus, pigs living in cramped quarters and fed cast off restaurant food. The pigs' excrement drops down through the aerated floor to the ground below and is trucked away to an unknown dumping ground, one of which is an adjacent field. But worse than the odor, the sanitation must be astronomical to meet federal regulations.

I was a health officer once in a small town and was called on several occasions to investigate the foul odors emitted from local properties. I had to question whether these situations consisted of animal or human waste, was it near any kind of waterway, what were the general conditions? Was the Attorney General's office and fish and game departments called, were local, state and federal laws met? Lastly, and of major concern, were proper permits signed and sealed by the town and/or state?

It is difficult for me to comprehend that all of the above conditions were met when odor of this magnitude exists, and that the number of pigs are so close to a residential setting. I am curious as to how this could occur without proper guidelines, laws, and lastly is this safe for the community and the pigs themselves?

Did you know that pig excrement contains nitrogen, phosphorus, hookworm, tetatnus, pig roundworm, giardia species, B&EColi, toxoplasma, miospordia, salmonella species, fungi-ringworm, parasites-tapeworm and campylobacter? Take a look at the web for Zoonoses/anneleses Hem - very informative. There are products to neutralize odor, spores, fungi, bacteria and microorganisms comprising a mixture of diatoms.

Any prudent person would report an incidence of disturbing the peace, such as loud disruptive noise in the wee hours of the morning. Why should foul odor 24/7 be treated any differently? What is there to fear? Sickness, even death, can occur from a number of organisms that can be leached into your drinking water, your gardens and onto your child's hands and lastly into food sources to our wild life. And we wonder where the source of these deadly organisms come from? There should be no wonder, only action.

Gloria Fulton Wellman

Our schools

Dear Editor,

Our schools are falling behind. While the rest of the developed world is preparing their children for the new century, our system continues to lag behind.

FACT-

-24 countries outscore U.S. schools in math, 20 countries in science.

-70% of American 8th-graders can't read at 8th-grade levels

-93% of U.S. middle school science teachers have little or no training in science

-America's high school graduation rate ranks 21st internationally.

The countries with the best schools attract the best jobs. If companies in the United States continue to out source jobs to other countries, our children's opportunities dry up. And so does our economy.

I demand a plan to provide every child the opportunity to a strong education. This crisis can and must be solved. The United States of America is only as strong as her schools.

Sincerely,
Bill Deignan

Guest Op-Ed

By Niki Tsongas

Whether I'm in Washington, DC, or at home in Massachusetts, I hear about and see the challenges that we are all facing as a result of the skyrocketing cost of gas every single day. This should not be an issue used to score political points - we need solutions. For some, high gas prices mean postponing a planned vacation or changing the way they commute to work. For many others, it means making unacceptable decisions between paying for gas or having to forgo basic necessities such as food or medicine.

The escalation of gas prices also threatens our national security as we continue to rely on many of the least politically stable regions of the world to supply our energy.

We face a serious and lasting challenge: the world's demand for energy will increase at a greater rate than what oil can supply. We must address current high prices, mitigate the costs that are inevitable as we transition to alternative energy sources, and provide a long term, comprehensive solution for American energy independence that relies upon America's ingenuity and resources.

Some of the components of this comprehensive energy strategy can be found in our backyard. Local employers are developing alternative energy technologies reliant upon the nydrogen fuel cell or solar power. Fuel cell technology being advanced in the Merrimack Valley has the potential to power everything from home appliances to cars with far greater efficiency than traditional power sources, while simultaneously creating jobs.

Other technologies such as plug-in hybrid vehicles, which will soon be coming to the market, can help ease the pain at the pump. Due to the tremendous benefits these technologies hold and how close they are to fruition, we should help these emerging industries bridge the final hurdles to being competitive so that their products can become broadly available.

I was proud to cosponsor legislation passed by the House earlier this year that will greatly expand tax incentives for renewable electricity, energy and fuel, as well as for plug-in hybrid vehicles. Unfortunately, the President has threatened to veto these commonsense measures. Research and development incentives are critical to helping alternative technologies grow and allowing the American consumer to access them. They should be made available immediately.

It is also important that we advance measures that encourage greater fuel efficacy and conservation. Last year, the Congress passed and the President signed into law the first increase in the miles per gallon standard for automobiles in 32 years. While increased fuel efficiency standards are a good start they won't help Americans at the pump for many years.

In the short term there are several steps that should be taken to help families bear high fuel costs. The first involves curtailing excessive speculation on oil futures, which has increased the cost of oil by as much as $20 - $60 per barrel. Since 2003, this practice has increased 425 percent and prevents millions of barrels of oil from coming to market.

Congress recently approved legislation that was signed into law to temporarily suspend purchases for our Strategic Petroleum Reserve. Such a move will allow more than 70,000 barrels of oil to remain on the world market each day, helping decrease the cost of gasoline by up to .25 cents per gallon.

Urgent effort is also needed to construct effective safety nets for those who are truly put in danger by the high cost of fuel. Last week, I joined with the majority of my colleagues from the New England Delegation in requesting that Congress triple the amount of funding for the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP), a program which helps low-income families pay to heat their homes in winter. Eligibility for the LIHEAP program should also be expanded, as increasing numbers of families will need assistance this winter.

One thing we should not do is assume that we can end our foreign oil dependence by simply increasing domestic oil drilling. The President has recently proposed lifting the moratorium on oil drilling off our coasts, claiming that it will allow us to achieve energy independence. The unfortunate reality is that we can't drill our way to lower gas prices when we use a quarter of the world's oil, but sit atop less than 2% of the world's supply.

Additionally, it would take more than a decade to bring oil in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge and on our coasts to market. Even then it would not reduce the cost of gas by more than a few pennies according to Energy Information Administration at the Department of Energy.

Those who advocate for more drilling should know that it is not Congress or the President who has the power to increase domestic production. Oil companies currently lease more than 68 million acres of public lands. Another 20 million acres of land in the National Petroleum Reserve in Alaska are ready for development now, and contain more oil than ANWR.

Oil companies have thus far been unwilling to drill on this leased land and will give no assurances that they will do so on the additional federal land if it is opened to them. With oil trading at more than $130 per barrel and oil companies setting record profits, there is little incentive for them to take on the financial risks of increased drilling. Our energy policy must include more solutions than simply drilling for a limited supply of oil that will have a small impact on price for a short period of time.

Our current and future demand for energy will increase at a greater rate than what fossil fuels can supply. We need a comprehensive solution to overcome this challenge that includes a broad portfolio of energy options.

The development of alternative energy technologies, relying on clean, renewable sources here in the United States and on American ingenuity, is the long term solution we need. Unlike increased dependence on oil, this strategy has the benefit of being sustainable, enhancing national security, and producing American jobs and growing the American economy.

Care and safety tips for your dog

Summer is a time for both you and your dog to enjoy the sunshine and outdoors. Along with the fun, however, the season also presents situations that can endanger your furry friend. By educating yourself and taking some precautions you can lessen the chance of injury or illness for your dog this summer

Watch Out for the Dog Days of Summer

*Don't leave pets in parked cars for any period of time. On a hot, summer day the temperature can skyrocket to 120'F in a matter of minutes. Parking in the shade or leaving the windows cracked does little to alleviate this pressure cooker.

*Pets are much less efficient at cooling themselves than people are. Remember dogs can't perspire and can only dispel heat by panting and through the pads of their feet, which are inadequate for cooling during hot days. Panting and drinking water helps cool them, but if they have only overheated air to breathe, dogs can suffer brain and organ damage after just 15 minutes. Don't think that because you'll be gone "just a minute," your pet will be safe while you're gone.

*The color of your dog's coat can make a difference when thinking about the damaging effect of the sun's ultraviolet rays. Lighter colored animals are more prone to sunburn and skin cancer than their darker colored companions. Dogs that spend a lot of time in the sun and have a light-colored coat or lacking the black pigment around the eyes, ears, and nose, can get sunburned. Protect your dog by (I) providing easy access to cool shade at all times and (2) applying sunblock. depending on the dog and the location of sensitive skin. Note: Dogs are quite adept at licking topical lotions off, so speak to your veterinarian as to what would be appropriate for your dog.

*Dogs should always have access to cool shade and fresh cool water in the summer heat!

Follow the Rules of the Road

*Never leave a dog untethered in the back of a pickup truck. Each year hundreds of dogs are thrown from the back of pickup trucks-many are seriously hurt or killed. If it is not possible to leave the dog at home, the safest way for it to travel is to bring your dog inside the car with you. If this option is not feasible, then secure your dog in a kennel fastened to the center of the beck of the pickup truck.

*It is illegal to drive with a dog in the bed of a pickup in some cities, counties, and states. Be sure you check with your local animal control to find out what the ordinance is in your area.

Waterproof Your Dog

*Many dogs love to swim and, as you know, any body of water will do-clean or dirty. In an effort to avoid ear mites, along with eye infections and having pesky clingy insects imbed themselves into your dog's fur, they should be rinsed off immediately following a dip in the lake, pond, or river. If your dog loves to jump into the pool, make sure he knows how to get out safely. If a dog falls into a river or lake, its instinct will tell it to turn around and try to get out from the point at which it fell in. This may work well in a lake or a river, but in a suburban swimming pool, the dog may drown if it adopts this instinctive action. Therefore, it is important to teach your dog where and how to get out of the pool regardless of where he went in.

* Swimming is very tiring and fun for dogs. Frequently dogs will continue to swim even when they are extremely tired. Be watchful of when your dog is tiring and call him out of the water for rest.

*Speaking of water fun, believe it or not, not all dogs like or know how to swim. If a dog does not know how to swim, but appears eager to give it a try, let him get used to it gradually. Never throw a nervous, inexperienced swimmer in the water.

Beware of Dirt Diggers and Garden Munchers

*As you work outside in your glorious garden or lawn, be sure to take an extra moment or two to protect your dog. The most commonly used lawn care products are fertilizers, herbicides, insecticides, and fungicides. Harmful exposure may occur due to inappropriate storage or failure to read package instructions when using these products.

*Dogs are especially good at finding poorly stored containers, chewing them up, and drinking or eating the contents. Be sure you are especially vigilant when using insecticides, as these tend to have a higher degree of toxicity.

*Fortunately for dogs-who often seem to enjoy eating grass and then vomiting - most grasses are nontoxic - even to dogs that vomit. Plus, most lawn seed and mulch products are not associated with toxic problems in pets. Cocoa bean mulch is perhaps the only product known to cause poisoning in dogs. This mulch is made from the hulls of cocoa beans and when fresh has a rich chocolate aroma associated with it. Anytime you add new landscaping it is best to keep a close eye on your dog for any unusual reactions.

Summer should be a fun time for everyone. By taking these precautions, you can keep your furry friends safe this summer!

Let's Hear it!! Your Two Cents...

Competing businesses aside, the Board of Selectmen called it right to deny Mobile on the Run their liquor license. It would become a magnet for Reading, Woburn, Stoneham adolescents, as well as those ding bats over 25 who think it's cool to buy alcohol for their 17 year old juniors, something TIPS cannot help you with.

The combination of gas station, liquor and interstate highways has a very bad feel to me.

Easter Seals and Century 21 team up for 5th annual Parade of Homes

Have you ever driven by a house and wondered what it looked inside or have you been looking for new ways to decorate your own home and help a good cause. Well Easter Seals and Century 21 have the solution for you. It is the fifth annual parade of homes taking place on Saturday October 18, 2008 from 12 noon to 4:00 P.M. in North Reading & Wilmington. The money that is raised will be donated directly to Easter Seals to help people who have been disabled as the result of illness, accident, or aging.

The way the Parade of Homes is run is that the public is invited to see different styles, sizes, locations and market values throughout North Reading and Wilmington. The houses that are featured on the Parade of Homes are not currently for sale, but Century 21 has asked their friends and neighbors to showcase their homes in order to raise money for Easter Seals.

"Much like a traditional open house that we conduct while marketing a property, we invite the public to see the interiors of these homes for decorating ideas, kitchen and bath designs, landscaping accomplishments and a whole of amenities that we envision as features that they will might like to take back home with them," explained by Broker/Owner Dave O'Neil.

Joyce Spindler also of Century 21 shared her thoughts on the event, stating that "We at Century 21 are thrilled to be able to give back to the community! "Easter Seals helps people who have been disabled as the result of illness, accident or aging, by providing services, daycare, and in home companionship to frail elders, summer camp activities to disabled children and comprehensive up-to-date referrals for disability services to a wide array of agencies and organizations," Spindler added.

Century 21 has been affiliated with Easter Seals since 1979. "Locally Century 21 Spindler & O'Neil and Starwood Associates have participated in various events including sponsoring several volleyball tournaments, a golf tournament, an overnight stay at Brandeis University while running in a 24 hour relay race and even participating in a bowling marathon," O 'Neil explained.

Easter Seals and Century 21 team up for 5th annual Parade of Homes

Have you ever driven by a house and wondered what it looked like inside or have you been looking for new ways to decorate your own home and at the same time help a good cause? Well, Easter Seals and Century 21 have the solution for you. It is the fifth annual Parade of Homes taking place on Saturday, October 18, 2008 from 12 Noon to 4:00 P.M. in North Reading and Wilmington. The money raised will be donated directly to Easter Seals to help people who have been disabled as the result of illness, accident or aging.

The way the Parade of Homes is run is that the public is invited to see different styles, sizes, locations and market values throughout North Reading and Wilmington. The houses that are featured on the Parade of Homes are not currently for sale, but Century 21 has asked their friends and neighbors to showcase their homes in order to raise money for Easter Seals.

"Much like a traditional open house that we conduct while marketing a property, we invite the public to see the interiors of these homes for decorating ideas, kitchen and bath designs, landscaping accomplishments and a whole lot of amenities that we envision as features that visitors might like to take back home with them," explained Broker/Owner Dave O'Neil.

Joyce Spindler also of Century 21 shared her thoughts on the event, stating that "We at Century 21 are thrilled to be able to give back to the community! "Easter Seals helps people who have been disabled as the result of illness, accident or aging by providing services, daycare, and in-home companionship to the elderly, summer camp activities to disabled children and comprehensive up-to-date referrals for disability services to a wide array of agencies and organizations," Spindler added.

Century 21 has been affiliated with Easter Seals since 1979. "Locally, Century 21 Spindler & O'Neil and Starwood Associates have participated in various events including sponsoring several volleyball tournaments, a golf tournament, an overnight stay at Brandeis University while running in a 24 hour relay race and even participating in a bowling marathon," O'Neil explained.

This year Century 21 Spindler & O'Neil is pleased that it's new office known as Century 21 Starwood in Wilmington will join in the fun and help make Easter Seals the 2008 Parade of Homes their largest success to date and raise even more money for a very worthy cause. Ozone is back and it's deadly WALTHAM - As we enter into another stretch of days with unhealthy air, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency tells us that there have been about 14 unhealthy air quality days so far this summer in New England. But, the real story is that there have actually been about 41 unhealthy ozone days.

In March, the EPA changed its air quality standards. Instead of following the recommendation of their own panel of scientists and organizations such as the American Lung Association, weak standards were set. According to their own scientists, these new standards do not adequately protect public health. If the stricter standards had been in place, the number of unhealthy days reported by EPA so far this summer would have nearly tripled.

Why does this matter? Because the EPA is giving us a false sense of security by basing air quality alerts on standards that do not adequately protect the public. We deserve to know the truth about the quality of the air we breathe.

We now know that breathing bad air for even short periods of time can cause damage to the lungs. The bad air we breathe causes a "sunburn" of the lungs. As we lather with SPF-blocking lotions to protect our skin, invisible air pollution is burning our lungs.

Visit OwnYourAir.org to get the daily air quality index and information on what you can do to protect yourself and your loved ones. Be mindful that when the EPA says the air is "moderate," it is really "unhealthy." The site also includes tips on what you can do at home, at work and at school to improve air quality and how you can get involved to insure that the air we breathe is healthy.

For more information, call the American Lung Association of New England at 1-800-LUNG USA.

The American Lung Association of New England is part of the American Lung Association, the oldest voluntary health organization in the U.S. Established in 1904 to combat tuberculosis, our mission today is to prevent lung disease and promote lung health. The focus is on air quality, asthma, tobacco control, and all lung disease. ALANE serves CT, MA, ME, NH, RI and VT

Dog Days of summer at the Book Store Next Door

WILMINGTON - It has been toasty in the Little House o' Books! But, you can still feel refreshed by the savings from shopping at the Friends of the Library's Book Store Next Door, located at 183 Middlesex Ave. in Wilmington. Where else can you find paperbacks for 50 cents, or $2.00 hard covers?

The back to school ads are beginning. Don't neglect to check out the reference section for dictionaries or thesauruses - spell check works, but it is not infallible. Having a dictionary at the ready is often quicker. It's handy for crossword puzzles too.

If you've run out of rainy day kids' activities the children's room is stocked with fun things to do, read or watch, rain or shine. Your dollars are returned to the library in many ways. Pick up a Friends brochure to find out the specifics.

The Book Store Next Door is open Wednesday evenings from 4:00 to 7:00 throughout the summer, and Saturdays year-round from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Contact Leslie Dietrich, 978-657-6536 or lesd4@verizon.net, for volunteer opportunities or questions. Many thanks for your continued support through shopping and donating.

Wilmington and North Reading electrical outages Saturday and Sunday

The Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD) service territory experienced high winds and rain at approximately 7:00 pm on Saturday 7/19, which resulted in several electrical large area outages in Wilmington and North Reading. The RMLD estimates that about 500 customers were impacted by the outages, which were the result of trees being blown down and damaging the electrical overhead system. The extent of the damage was localized to a dozen area outages in Wilmington and several in North Reading. The area most severely affected was a section of Wilmington on Lawrence Road, Dobson Road, Williams Road, and Judith Drive. RMLD Line Crews worked from early Saturday night through Sunday night to repair the overhead equipment and return electrical service to all customers in the territory.

The impact of hurricanes on inland locations

Major inland flooding is possible

FRAMINGHAM - Hurricanes or tropical cyclones are not merely coastal events or wind events. Due to the fact that Massachusetts is a relatively small state, depending upon the storm's track, the entire Commonwealth could be severely impacted by a tropical storm or hurricane. The destruction dealt by the devastating winds can result in destroyed buildings, downed trees and power outages.

"The sometimes forgotten threat associated with hurricanes, particularly in our inland communities is flooding," stated Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency Director Don Boyce. "The west side of the eye of a hurricane, as it moves northward along the Atlantic Coast, is the 'wet side', as the storm's counterclockwise winds draw moisture from the ocean, potentially depositing torrential rains far inland."

Intense rainfall is not directly related to the wind speed of tropical cyclones. In fact, some of the greatest rainfall amounts occur from weaker storms that drift slowly or stall over an area. A tropical storm can produce more rainfall than a Category 5 hurricane. As all hurricanes weaken to tropical storms and move inland, the threat of torrential rains and high winds over large areas intensify the risks of flooding.

Although weakened to a tropical storm prior to its arrival in the Commonwealth, in 1999, most of Hurricane Floyd's impact was rain and flood related, causing severe damage as far west as the Berkshires. In fact, some of our most devastating flooding associated with these historic storms has occurred in Central and Western Massachusetts, as up to 17" fell in association with the 'Hurricane of 1938' and 25" of rain fell over a 5-day period in August 1955 from 'Connie & Diane' which reached Massachusetts as Tropical Storms. During that period, the City of Westfield received 13.15" of rain in a single day.

While storm surge is always a potential coastal threat associated with hurricanes, more people died from inland flooding over the past 30-plus years. Since the early 1970s, freshwater flooding has accounted for more than half (59%) of U.S. tropical cyclone deaths.

These floods are why 63% of U.S. tropical cyclone deaths during that period occurred in inland counties. 78% of children killed by tropical cyclones drowned in freshwater floods.

SAFETY TIPS TO REMEMBER

- Have a Family Disaster Kit.
- Develop a Family Communication Plan.
- Educate yourself about your community's Emergency Management Plan, including potential evacuation routes and locations of public shelters.
- Learn your vulnerability to flooding.
- In highly flood-prone areas, keep materials on hand like sandbags, plywood, plastic sheeting, plastic garbage bags, lumber, shovels, work boots and gloves.
- Be aware of streams, drainage channels and areas known to flood, so you or your evacuation routes are not cut off.
- As a storm approaches, continually monitor the event on local Media.
- If advised to evacuate, do so immediately.
- Avoid driving into water of unknown depth; as little as 6" of water may cause you to lose control of your vehicle.
- Avoid downed power lines. Assumed a downed wire is a live wire.
- Have flood insurance. Flood damage is not usually covered by homeowners insurance. Do not make assumptions. Check your policy. The National Flood Insurance Program is a pre-disaster flood mitigation and insurance protection program. The National Flood Insurance Program makes federally backed flood insurance available to residents and business owners.

The Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA) is the state agency responsible for coordinating federal, state, local, voluntary and private resources during emergencies and disasters in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. MEMA provides leadership to: develop plans for effective response to all hazards, disasters or threats; train emergency personnel to protect the public; provide information to the citizenry; and assist individuals, families, businesses and communities to mitigate against, prepare for, and respond to and recover from emergencies, both natural and man made. For additional information about MEMA and Hurricane Preparedness, go to www.mass.gov/mema.

This huge tree was launched over Main Street by Silver Lake, blocking traffice for quite some time. After a good Samaritan chopped off the top of the tree enough for one car to pass, drivers from both sides converged on the one car wide lane.

FAME is a full-scale replica of one of the first American privateers to get to sea during the War of 1812. FAME was also arguably the first privateer to send in a captured vessel. She seized some 21 prizes in the waters off Maine, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick before being lost in the Bay of Fundy in 1814.

Launched in 2003 from the H. A. Burnham Boatyard, our new FAME takes the paying public for cruises on Salem Sound, where pirates, privateers, East Indiamen and men of war have been making history for 400 years. FAME sails up to four times daily from Memorial Day through Halloween from Pickering Wharf Marina in downtown Salem.

Tsongas calls for increased funding for low income heating assistance

WASHINGTON, DC - Congresswoman Niki Tsongas today joined with members of the New England Congressional Delegation at a press conference to call for increased funding for the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP), a program which helps low-income families pay their heating bills. Twenty members from the New England delegation made their views known in a letter to Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi, urging the House of Representatives to triple the current amount of LIHEAP funding for the coming fiscal year and to expand the program's eligibility requirements, as increasing numbers of families will need assistance this winter. The members of the delegation stated that the increased funding is needed to ease the burden of rising heating costs and should be considered as part of an economic stimulus package.

At the press conference Tsongas stated, "The dramatic escalation of oil prices is putting a tremendous strain on working families in our region and many don't how they will be able to afford to heat their homes in the winter. While the cold weather is several months off, the time for action is now. LIHEAP is critical to maintaining the health and well being of many low income families in our area. Without access to additional LIHEAP funds, many households will be forced to make painful choices between heating their homes, and putting food on their tables or purchasing necessary prescription drugs. These are choices that no family should ever have to make and that is why members of the New England Delegation are joining together today in urging an appropriate increase in funding for this critical program."

Members of the delegation are also requesting $1 billion for Weatherization Assistance and a release from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve (SPR) to lower prices at the pump.

Final plea for Middlesex County host families

Foreign high school students are scheduled to arrive soon for academic semester homestay programs, and the sponsoring organization needs a few more local host families. The students are anxiously awaiting news of their new families. These young ambassadors are looking forward to fulfilling their life-long dreams.

According to Pacific Intercultural Exchange (P.I.E.) President, John Doty, the students are all between the ages of 15 and 18 years, are English-speaking, have their own spending money, carry accident and health insurance, and are anxious to share their cultural experiences with their new American families. P.I.E. currently has programs to match almost every family's needs, ranging in length from a semester to a full academic year, where the students attend local high schools.

P.I.E. area representatives match students with host families by finding common interests and lifestyles through an informal in-home meeting. Prospective host families are able to review student applications and select the perfect match. As there are no "typical" host families, P.I.E. can fit a student into just about any situation, whether it is a single parent, a childless couple, a retired couple or a large family.

Families who host for P.I.E. are also eligible to claim a $50.00 per month charitable contribution deduction on their itemized tax returns for each month they host a sponsored student.

For the upcoming programs, P.I.E. has students from Germany, the former Sovie Union, Venezuela, Argentina Brazil, Japan, Hungary, Korea Mexico, Australia, Yugoslavia China, and many other coun tries. P.I.E. is also participatin in two special government funded programs to brin scholarship students from th Newly Independent States o the former Soviet Union as wel as predominantly Islamic coun tries such as Yemen, Syria Jordan, Morocco, Kuwait, Ira and Qatar to the United States P.I.E. is a non-profit education al organization that has spon sored more than 25,000 student from 45 countries since it founding in 1975. The organiza tion is designated by the Unite States Department of State an is listed by the Council o Standards for Internationa Educational Travel (CSIET) certifying that the organizatio complies with the standards se forth in CSIET's Standards fo International Educationa Travel Programs.

Doty encourages families t contact the program immedi ately, as it will allow the prope time for the students and host to get to know one anothe before they actually meet fo the first time.

Middlesex County familie interested in learning mor about student exchange o arranging for a meeting with a community representative ma call P.I.E., toll-free, at 1-866-546 1402. The agency also has trav el/study program opportunitie available for American hig school students as well as pos sibilities for community volun teers to assist and work witl area host families, students an schools.

Breast Cancer Research stamp sales still going strong

Breast Cancer Research stamp sales still going strong Historic postage stamp turning 10

Here's a quick postal quiz. What do the numbers 1, 10, 62.5 million and 823.7 million have in common?

They all relate to the astonishing success of the Breast Cancer Research stamp.

According to Michelle Saracusa, acting marketing manager for the Massachusetts Postal District, the Breast Cancer Research stamp was the first semi-postal stamp ever authorized by Congress for the specific purpose of raising funds from the American public to assist in finding a cure for breast cancer.

It will celebrate its 10th birthday on July 29, and in those 10 years has raised more than $62.5 million for cancer research through the sale of more than 823.7 million stamps.

"That's incredible," she said. "Think of the impact this tiny work of art has had not only on bringing awareness to breast cancer, but in helping to help find a cure for this dreaded disease."

A pane of 20 BCR stamps costs $11.

"This unique semipostal stamp has a dual purpose," she said, explaining that not only does it represent the First-Class postage rate in effect at the time of purchase, "but the cost over and above this rate goes directly into breast cancer research."

According to statistics, nearly 185,000 women and 1,400 men are diagnosed with breast cancer each year and nearly 46,000 of those will die from the disease.

The BCR stamp features artwork of a mythical "goddess of the hunt" by Whitney Sherman of Baltimore.

To support the fight against breast cancer, she said, persons can visit their Post Office, call 1-800-STAMP-24 (800-782-6724), or go to www.usps.com and click on Buy Stamps and Shop.

An independent federal agency, the u.s. Postal service is the only delivery service that visits every address in the nation - 146 million homes and businesses. It has 37,000 retail locations and relies on the sale of postage, products and services to pay for operating expenses, not tax dollars. The Postal service has annual revenues of $75 billion and delivers nearly half the world's mail.

Book Discussion for Children

Ages 7 & Older- Tuesday, August 5, 11:30 a.m.

The Gigglers usually know what they're doing. When adults are mean to kids—making them go to their room without dinner or forcing them to wear clothes they hate—the Gigglers won't let them get away with it, they make sure the grumpy grown-ups step in doggie poo...over and over again until they start being nice. This is called the Giggler Treatment. But this time the Gigglers have made a mistake! Mr. Mack is about to step in some poo he doesn't deserve. It's up to a talking dog, Rover, Mr. Mack's not-quite-talking baby daughter, Kayla, and the rest of their family to save Mr. Mack from a poo disaster. Sound like a silly book! Well, it is!

Find out more when you read Roddy Doyle's The Giggler Treatment. Join children ages 7 & older for their discussion of this book. Copies of the book may be reserved by visiting or calling the Children's Room at (978) 694-2098. Drop-in for the discussion and please bring your lunch. TOP EMPLOYEE – Jayma Martin (center) has been named UniFirst's Employee of the Year for its coporate location. Making the official announcement was Ron Croatti (right), president and CEO, and Cynthia Croatti, Treasurer and Executive Vice President.
Note: President Ron Croatti is holding Jayma's personal Employee of the Year award. Jayma is holding a plaque that includes her name and will be on permanent display in the corporate offices.

10,000 honor UniFirst's founder

WILMINGTON - Proudly wearing specially designed commemorative T-shirts, more than 10,000 UniFirst Corporation employees simultaneously celebrated their company's 72nd year in business at 194 locations throughout the U.S. and Canada on July 11.

UniFirst, which employees 300 employees at its corporate offices here, is a leading supplier of uniforms and work apparel to a wide range of industries. It outfits more than one million people in their business attire each business day of the week.

The nationwide celebration, known as Founder's Day, honors the memory of the late Aldo Croatti, who started the company on July 12, 1936. The celebration is held each year on a Friday that's closest to that historic date. This year marked the fourth consecutive Founder's Day at UniFirst.

CEO and President Ronald Croatti, the founder's son, said the special day is intended to be a time when all employees, or "team partners," are thanked for their contributions, reflect on the company's customer-focused principles, and recommit themselves to the future growth of the company.

"Founder's Day is a tribute to Aldo's memory and to the principles he believed in," Croatti said. "It's also a reminder to all of us that the rules he used to guide our company are those we still need to focus on. He believed deeply in the value of every employee, and he always said the best results come from working with people, rather than having them work for you."

Typically, each UniFirst location celebrates Founder's Day in its own unique way. Some celebrations, for example, have included managers going into dunk-tanks, surprise visits by ice cream trucks, and lunchtime pig roasts. However, there are also a number of similarities, such as the showing of a video that depicts the principles by which Aldo Croatti guided UniFirst, and the announcement of each location's Employee of the Year.

Jayma Martin, an executive assistant at UniFirst was named the corporate offices's 2008 Employee of the Year. In being named Employee of the Year, Jayma was presented with a special recognition gift and will have her name inscribed on a plaque that will be on permanent display at UniFirst's corporate offices in Wilmington, MA.

Executive Vice President Cynthia Croatti, the founder's daughter, said that each location's Employee of the Year is nominated by his or her peers and, in their judgment, "best exemplifies the qualities that defined my father." Those qualities, she explained, call for a constant focus on customer satisfaction and having a never-ending respect for coworkers.

As a UniFirst Employee of the Year, Jayma received a certificate that entitling her to a day off with pay, a gift from an awards catalog, and a commemorative plaque.

Wilmington and North Reading

Electrical outages Saturday and Sunday

The Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD) service territory experienced high winds and rain at approximately 7:00 pm on Saturday 7/19, which resulted in several electrical large area outages in Wilmington and North Reading. The RMLD estimates that about 500 customers were impacted by the outages, which were the result of trees being blown down and damaging the electrical overhead system. The extent of the damage was localized to a dozen area outages in Wilmington and several in North Reading. The area most severely affected was a section of Wilmington on Lawrence Road, Dobson Road, Williams Road, and Judith Drive. RMLD Line Crews worked from early Saturday night through Sunday night to repair the overhead equipment and return electrical service to all customers in the territory.

Hallmark Health Hospice holds 'Kids and Grief' Support Group

Children react differently from adults regarding the death of a loved one. Within age groups, there is also a difference in how they respond to loss. To assist in helping children process their loss, Hallmark Health Visiting Nurse Association and Hospice is sponsoring a Kids and Grief support group for children ages 5-8, and a support group for children ages 9-13. The groups will meet at the Franklin School in Melrose beginning on September 17th. Registration is currently taking place.

The Support Group for children 5-8 years old will meet twice a month on the first and third Wednesday from 4-5:30pm. Coinciding with this group will be an optional parents group, which will provide parents or guardians with the tools to assist children in understanding death and the grieving process. The Support Group for Children ages 9-13 will meet on the second and fourth Wednesday of the month from 4-5:30 p.m.

According to Judy Seifert, MSW, LICSW, Bereavement Coordinator at Hallmark Health VNA and Hospice, children age five to eight usually see death as temporary and reversible. "This is a belief reinforced by cartoon characters who die and come to life again," she explains. Older children, says Seifert, begin to think more like adults about death. However, she adds that every child expresses grief differently, and there is no right or wrong way to grieve. "Our counselors use techniques ranging from art therapy to movement therapy in an effort help children express their feelings," says Seifert.

The Hallmark Health VNA and Hospice's "Kids and Grief" Support Groups provide a safe place for children to not only express their feelings, but also to share memories, meet new friends, and learn how to process their grief. Registration is required to attend the first meeting. To register and for information on this group and bereavement groups for adults, call Judy Seifert at (781) 338-7861.

Saturday's storm caused a significant amount of damage in the Silver Lake area. This car, owned by Rana Boudreau of Williams Ave, for instance, broke the fall a huge oak tree. Residents of the area dedicated a good portion of their Sunday to cleaning up debris.

an account was set up with the Cambridge Firefighters Federal Credit Union to accept donations for the troops affected by the fire. Rossi's letter reached out to other local fire fighters through the union and these efforts resulted so far in a generous donation of $3,000 being given to Local Heroes and earmarked specifically for Fallujah.

Rossi described the Fallujah fire in his letter stating, "The fire was electrical in nature, not an enemy action, but moved swiftly. Some Marines escaped their tents with just the clothes they were wearing. They attempted to fight the fire and salvage what they could. Some wrapped their tee shirts around their faces to get by the smoke and heat. The munitions they keep with them became involved and it became extremely chaotic. One Marine attempted to make a fire break with a piece of construction equipment but when the intense heat shattered the windshield he had to give up that idea. No one was badly hurt but all lost something in the fire."

In addition to the Cambridge Firefighter's fundraising, the Arlington Men's Club contributed $1,000 and the Ahern Family Charitable Foundation sent $500 to assist in the re-supply efforts for these soldiers. These large contributions and many community contributions allowed Local Heroes to ship many boxes for this cause.

"We thank the Wilmington Community and the people that continue to donate to Local Heroes to make it such a success," said Cimaglia.

Wilmington residents say this tree was struck by lightning on Saturday evening. The piece that broke off landed on a ranch style house in the Jones Ave. neighborhood.

Thomas family sees the world

just outside of South Manchester, about three hours north of London.

Tyler and Matthew were the first "international" students at their primary school, but by the time they returned home there were three other American families, a Swedish family, an Australian family, three Japanese families and even a British family who had spent the last four years in Germany.

"It was a mini UN," joked Anita.

Though the twins easily made new friends and picked up distinct British accents, the boys described the downside of the British education system.

"We had to wear uniforms," said Tyler. "We didn't like that."

With their uniforms packed away while on a break from school, the Thomas family took their first trip to Paris. Though Scott had plans of showing the boys the cultural side of Paris, including Versailles and the Louvre, Matthew was on a mission to find as many Parisian playgrounds as he could.

In addition to experiencing the recreational atmosphere, the children learned a lot about European history and culture while traveling abroad.

"While living overseas, I learned that Tyler loves History," said Anita. "He loves to dress up in costumes. During our travels, his chosen souvenir was always a hat or full-blown costume from that city or country. As a result, we now have several knight costumes, lots of swords, a Viking hat, and a gladiator outfit, as well as a Robin Hood and Little John costumes. If there was a castle at our vacation-destination, Tyler asked if we could see it, especially if there was a war room or a dungeon."

The family visited Edinburgh Castle in Scotland; Conwy Castle in Wales; Warwick Castle in Warwickshire; Windsor Castle in Windsor; Kensington Palace in London; Drottingholm Palace in Sweden; Bunratty Castle and Blarney Castle in Ireland; Dogues Palace in Venice.

"What I really enjoyed was watching the boys after each trip. They would put on their costumes, and act out what they learned or experienced in that country," explained Anita. "They would also draw a picture of their favorite location - this was done on their own, without us asking them to, and then it turned into an' after-vacation tradition. It's great to see Ryan still remember the Eiffel Tower, since he was very young then. Or when he watches 'Wonder Pets' and the pets are rescuing a kitten in Venice, and he'll see a gondola and say 'We went there!' Or when the boys watch a Scooby-Doo episode, and 'the gang' is in Scotland, and they recognize Edinburgh Castle."

Castles, dungeons and European playgrounds are all pretty exciting to young boys, but Tyler and Matthew describe a different setting as their favorite destination.

"Our favorite place to travel was Barcelona," said Tyler.

As it turns out, 'the city's weather was most appealing to the twins after spending several months in the rainy and gray climate of their adopted home in northern England.

"When we arrived and saw the blue skies, and palm trees, I looked at my mom and asked, 'Is this paradise?'" recalled Tyler.

Traveling to Poland to visit family was also a memorable occasion.

"Although I have failed in teaching my boys to speak Polish, I have carried on Polish traditions, cook Polish foods, and stay in touch with my relatives.," said Anita. "My aunts, uncles, and cousins were all very excited and welcoming. They love to see "their little Americans." I enjoyed watching the boys play and interact with their cousins despite the language barrier. Kids can just communicate with one another through play, and it was so much fun to watch.

The family decided to do a grand tour of Italy for their final European trip.

"I had always wanted to go to Venice, Scott wanted to see Rome, and someone had told Tyler about the Leaning Tower of Pisa, so that's where he wanted to go. But then he started asking questions about Rome and gladiators and he couldn't wait to go to Rome and see the Coliseum and other Roman ruins," shared Anita.

"We also stayed in Florence, as it was close to Pisa. While in Florence, we had a choice of going into the famous Cathedral, the Duomo, or climbing to the top of the dome. The boys decided for us...climb the dome! Very tiring, but the view was worth it! Also in Florence, Scott wanted to go see Michelangelo's statue of David. Not very exciting for kids. As a trade off, we hyped-up the Leonardo DaVinci museum where the boys got to see replicas of DaVinci's inventions. It was a touch-feely museum, so they loved it. I don't think many 7-year-olds know that Leonardo DaVinci invented what is now the modern-day army tank or helicopter or olive press."

The Thomas family decided to return to the US a little ahead of schedule to avoid a repeat of the previous summer's temperatures of only 55 degrees. Instead of returning in August, the family headed back to their Wilmington home on Fenway Street in May. They've since been reunited with their dog Aspen. The boys are looking forward to starting second grade, and playing soccer and football in the fall.

Wilmington resident Dave Reynolds

Gearing up for next month's triathlon

By MIKE GIANNATTASIO
Sports Correspondent

Wilmington resident Dave Reynolds first remembers when he got hooked on triathlons, a race that involves swimming, biking and running.

"I did my first triathlon in 2003," said Reynolds. "I had just finished graduate school and I figured I finally had some extra time to get back in shape.

"I was talking to a friend about doing a triathlon and we decided to sign-up for the Boston triathlon, which was a sprint distance triathlon held on Labor Day weekend. My friend didn't do the race, but I still went through with it.

"I wasn't sure how to train for it and I just started to do some running and swimming about a month out from the race date. I used my mountain bike for the 'bike portion' and my goal was to finish and have fun. I had a blast and was hooked on the sport going forward."

Reynolds, a Nashua Senior High School graduate, is one of 275 active members involved in TriFury, the largest triathlon club in all of New England. The club is dedicated to support amateur triathletes from the first timer to the experienced age group competitor. There are several members in the club who have even qualified and raced for the National and World Championships.

Reynolds said being part of the triathlon club takes several days of training per week.

"I typically train three to four days a week," said Reynolds. "It's a bit easier (to train) in the summer with more daylight hours and not having as many kid's sports activities. I've been going to the gym three times a week and I usually do about 30 minutes of cardio and another 30 minutes of strength training.

"A lot of triathletes stay away from the weights, but I've been sticking with them this year because I feel it minimizes my injuries. I just started to swim again (once a week) and will go to the YMCA and will meet-up with some people from Trifury at Silver Lake.

"I also try to bike once a week. One thing I need to do is run, which is my least favorite part of triathlons."

The next competition Reynolds is gearing up for is the Timberman Sprint in August.

He finished in the top 30 percent of the entrants last year, but he has finished in the top 20 percent in previous years.

"I would like to do better than I did last year (at the Timberman Sprint), but my main goal is to stay injury free, finish and have fun," said Reynolds.

When competing in the triathlons, each competitor has a transition area where they keep their bike, shoes, helmet and swimming gear. The transition area is usually only a few minutes away from the swim which is the first part of the triathlon.

After the swim the competitors run back to the transition area and get onto their bikes, and the bike ride is an out and back course. Once the competitors complete their bike ride, they come back to the transition area and change into their running gear for the last part of the race.

Reynolds, who went to UNH for a year before moving to San Diego, CA, took one and a half years off before going back and graduation from San Diego State University. After he graduated he came back to the east to work.

He said he enjoys everything that comes with the triathlon.

"The triathlon is something that drives me to stay in shape," said Reynolds. "Plus, it's good cross training. I like that I'm not just running or doing one activity all the time. I've also met some great people along the way.

"I think the best part for me is the atmosphere and camaraderie. Everyone is in a great mood and very supportive of one another. There are a few of the serious athletes out there that will swim right over you, but that is few and far between."

Although it's difficult for Reynolds to complain about the triathlon, he does admit that he is not a fan of hot weather.

"I guess the worst part for me is the really hot days," said Reynolds. "Even though the races start early, I can sometimes be out on the run when it really gets hot and be thinking 'what the heck am I doing this for? But it's still worth it in the end."

TriFury members range in age from the teens though the late 60s and TriFury is currently making efforts to broaden the age span. For its members TriFury is sponsoring a mini-triathlon (400-yard swim, nine and a half mile bike ride, and two-mile run) throughout this summer in Tyngsboro, and it is mainly for beginners.

For more information about the club, visit www.trifury.com.

UMass Lowell excited to have Devlin and DePierro

The class of 19 players - which includes 16 freshmen and three transfers - is the largest in Harring's tenure as he enters his fifth season at UML.

The River Hawks are fresh of a 26-24 season (18-12 in the Northeast-10 Conference, tied for fourth) which saw them go 23-12 following a 3-12 start. UML advanced to the NE-10 Tournament before suffering an early exit at the hands of Pace University.

The River Hawks are expected to return 20 veterans for next year, including seven starting positional players and eight pitchers (three starters, five relievers).

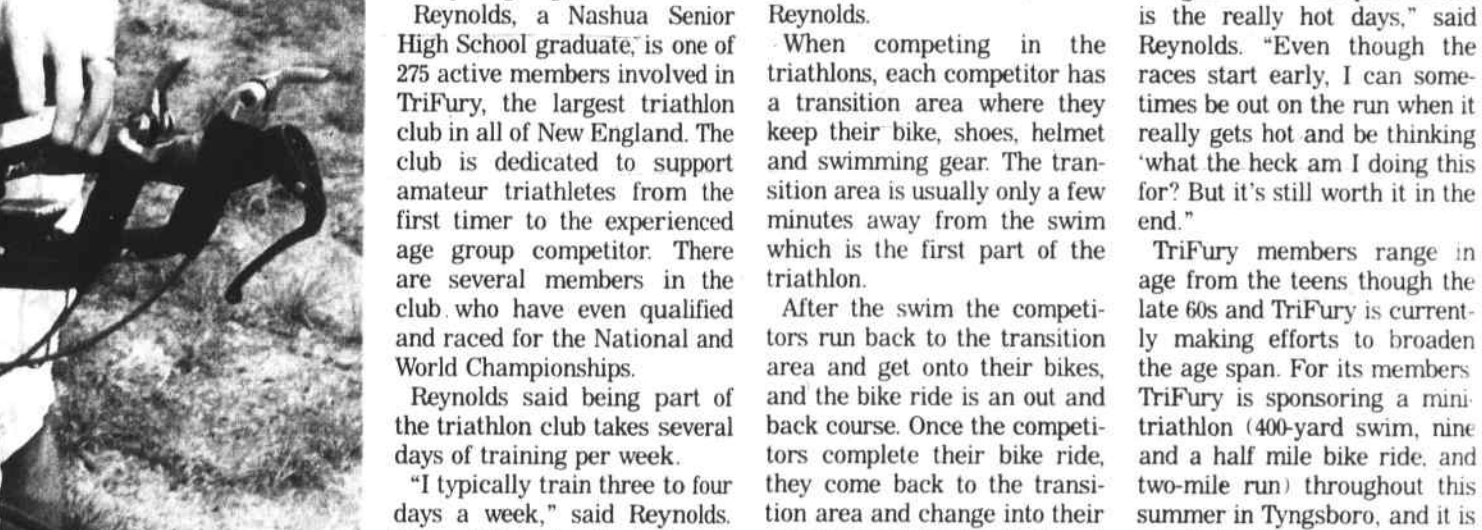

"This class brings some depth, some athleticism, a lot of quality players who have been at the top of their leagues," said Harring, who came to UML in 2004 following four seasons at Saint Anselm. "They all come from winning programs. With this class, I think we've addressed the needs of what happened this past year with our offense. I think it will be an exciting year. When it is all said and done, this is the best recruiting class I've brought in my eight years as a head coach."

Also joining the River Hawks this fall are five former Cape Ann League all-stars in J.T. Leary (Newburyport, MA), Michael Sloban (Merrimac, MA), Cam Kneeland (Rowley, MA) as well as Vincent DiCesare (Lynnfield, MA) and Phil Perriello (Lynnfield, MA), teammates at Lynnfield H.S.

DiCesare and Perriello are among three sets of high school teammates in the class, which also includes sophomore Steve Lambert (Milton, MA) and freshman Ryan Stoller (Milton, MA), former teammates and Bay State League all-stars at Milton H.S. Also on board are Bryant Guilmette (Hopkinton, MA) and Mark Sanborn (Hopkinton, MA), both Tri-Valley League all-stars at Hopkinton H.S.

Also joining the River Hawks are Mid-Wachusett League standouts Chris Soldi (Clinton, MA), Andrew Staszewski (Maynard, MA) and Matt Jacobs (Hudson, MA); Jack Leathersich (Beverly, MA), a Northeast Conference all-star; Nicholas Conti (Lynn, MA), who starred at St. Mary's H.S.; and Dallas Nunes (Easton, MA), who was a Hockomock League all-star at Oliver Ames H.S.

Devlin, a third baseman/pitcher, and DePierro, a lefthanded pitcher, enjoyed stellar careers at Tewksbury H.S., leading the Redmen to consecutive MVC championships. A three-year starter, Devlin posted a 16-7 record and earned All-MVC honors as a junior and senior. DePierro posted a team-leading 1.00 ERA and earned team most improved honors.

Annual Bay State Summer Games

Liekweg, others, fare well on the track

A handful of locals participated in Track-And-Field during the second and final week of the annual Bay State Games held this past Tuesday at the Cushing Field complex at the University of Massachusetts at Lowell.

Robert Liekweg, 20, of Tewksbury, was the top overall performer as he won the men's 400 meter hurdles open division with a time of 55.54. Jim Burgoyne, also of Tewksbury, was second in the men's shot put masters division with a throw of 37-04.50, while the 47-year-old also finished sixth in the men's discus throw open division, tossing 102-04.

Current UML track star Sarah Bonomo, 19 and from Tewksbury, was second in the women's 3,000 meter open division, finishing at 12:22.22. Sixteen-year-old Kristen Wilson, of Tewksbury, was second in the girls high jump scholastic division clearing five feet, and she also played fifth in the 200 meter scholastic division with a time of 28.31 seconds.

Natalie Russo, who will be a senior at Wilmington High School this fall, finished second in the 3,000 meters (12:06.73) and eighth in the 800 meter run (2:48.43). Her sister, Sydnee also placed in two events, taking a second place in the girls one mile junior run (6:23.17) and a fourth in the girls 800 meter junior run (2:59.49). And the third Russo, Jake, was third in the boys junior javelin tossing 80-01 and was fifth in the 200 meter junior dash coming across the line at 27.01 seconds.

James DiNuccio of Wilmington placed in two events, with a third in the long jump scholastic division (20-07) and a tenth in the 400 meter dash (57.17). Shawn Fahey, a former state champion at WHS, was fifth in the javelin open, tossing 170-06.

And finally, Bill and Joanne Harriman were sixth and tenth, respectively in the mixed 3,000 meter walk, with times of 19:11.84 and 21:22.26.

In the first week of Bay State Summer Games, The Northeast girls soccer team beat Coastal 3-0 to capture the bronze medal. Area athletes who contributed to the performance were Meghan Billings (Tewksbury; Tewksbury HS) who played in the net and let in only one goal on the weekend and forward Kaitlyn Souza (Wilmington, Wilmington HS) who notched several assists for the team.

Wildcat girls U14 team red hot

The Wilmington U14 girls softball team has reached the halfway mark of their summer season in the Middle-Essex League and have won three of their last four games, showing improvement in each game. The team is coached by Jackie Rubino and assisted by Lauren Otto and Bill Kennedy. The roster includes pitchers Charlene Sullivan, Nikki Lunt, and Ashley White. Ryen Cahill is the catcher. The infield consists of Emily Schuh at 1B, Jackie Kennedy at 2B, Jackie Parece at SS, Kelley Wilcox at 3B, and Katie Kurowski covering at all four positions. Kim Woods, Gillian Heri, Robin Hollenbeck, and Lauren Sullivan have manned the outfield positions. Unfortunately, Sullivan may miss the second half of the season due to an injury and will be missed by the team.

The Wildcats had a rough start being shutout by a strong Billerica team. The Billerica pitcher allowed only four hits, walked one and struck out five. Hollenbeck had two of Wilmington's four hits. In their next game, against North Andover, Wilmington went into the bottom of the 6th inning with a 4-2 lead, only to see North Andover score 3 runs on 3 hits and an error. The North Andover pitcher put the Wildcats down 1-2-3 in the 7th to secure the 5-4 win. Lunt pitched well for Wilmington in that game, giving up only 3 hits and striking out 3 in her 4 innings pitched.

The game against Reading is one the Wildcats would like to forget. They outhit Reading 10-2 and scored 9 runs but control on the mound was absent and led to several long innings and their third straight loss. Kennedy came in for the final inning and put down three of the four she faced, with one batter reaching on an error. Wilmington's offense was strong with two hits a piece by Kennedy, Parece, and Cahill. The team didn't let that game get them down though as they notched their first victory in the next game against Pentucket with a 13-6 win. The pitchers turned it around and put down the first twelve Pentucket batters and only allowed four hits for the game. Leading the offense was Parece with three hits, Schuh and White each had two hits and White had 3 RBIs.

Travelling to Littleton the following night, the Wildcats were two outs away from their second victory before the Tigers scored four in the last inning to take an 11-10 win. It was tough loss for the Wildcats but they continued to show improvement on the field. Hollenbeck made a fine catch in left field and then doubled off the runner by firing to Wilcox at 3B. The Wildcats also showed some speed, swiping nine bases. Parece continued her hot hitting with two more hits.

Last week Wilmington had two solid victories. The first was Wednesday night in Haverhill when they came away with a 13-7 win. Lunt, Sullivan and White combined on the mound to give up only 4 hits, 2 earned runs, and struck out 5. Cahill threw out 3 Haverhill runners trying to advance. Heri, Lunt and Parece had two hits each. Hollenbeck used her speed in the 5th inning after she put down a perfect sacrifice bunt and the catcher threw the ball into right field. Hollenbeck flew around the bases, scoring on the four base error. The team continued their base running success with ten more stolen bases. In the 6th inning Haverhill had two runners on and were threatening but a nice running catch in left field by Heri ended the inning.

On Thursday the Wildcats made it back-to-back wins with a 9-4 victory over Gloucester at the West Field. Once again, the pitching was very good with White, Lunt and Sullivan combining on a 6-hitter. Sullivan had a 1-2-3 6th inning thanks to an inning ending scoop at 2B by Parece. Cahill had three hits in the game. Schuh had two hits, including a double and White also doubled.

Wilmington travels to Newburyport on Monday this week and then comes home to face Amesbury on Thursday night at the West. The Middle-Essex league is celebrating their 30th anniversary this summer and consists of over a hundred teams from the Middlesex and Essex counties with age groups ranging from U10 to U18. For many girls playing in this league is a wonderful way to spend a summer's evening and it's also great experience for those either already playing high school softball or for those planning to play for a high school team in the near future. The league website contains schedules, standings and team information. It can be found at http://www.eteamz.com/MiddleessexI/.

Spirit of Golf

It's a fund known throughout the international world of golf, but two of the biggest names associated with it in 2008 have very local ties to the Middlesex East region. The Francis Ouimet Scholarship Fund, one of the most well-known scholarships associated with any professional sport, was founded in 1949. Since that time, it has awarded over $17.7 million in need and merit based college tuition assistance to young people who have given at least two years of service to golf as caddies or worked in pro shops or course superintendent operations in Massachusetts.

RICHARD F. (DICK) CONNOLLY, Jr., a Woburn native, will receive the Francis Ouimet Scholarship Fund's "Spirit of Golf" Award, which honors individuals who love the game of golf and are deeply committed to charitable and community support. Reading native and current Lynnfield resident Anne Marie Tobin (above) was the recipient of the Richard F. Connolly, Jr. Distinguished Service Award. Ms. Tobin began her distinguished golf career at Thomson Club in North Reading.

The classic Ouimet motto, "From what golf has given you, let us give something back to golf."

This year, two locals who have deep roots within the Ouimet Scholarship Fund have been chosen to receive special recognition. Richard F. (Dick) Connolly, Jr. (a Woburn native) will be honored with a major banquet at the Boston Marriott Copley Place on Monday, November 10, when he will receive the Francis Ouimet Scholarship Fund's "Spirit of Golf" Award, which honors individuals who love the game of golf and are deeply committed to charitable and community support in the spirit of the classic Ouimet motto, "From what golf has given you, let us give something back to golf."

In May, Reading native and current Lynnfield resident Anne Marie Tobin was the recipient of the received the Richard F. Connolly, Jr. Distinguished Service Award (named after the Woburn native) at the Francis Ouimet Scholarship Fund's 59th Annual Banquet, held Monday, May 19, 2008 at the Boston Convention & Exhibition Center.

Tohin (whose maiden name is Locke) is regarded as one of the finest female golfers (and finest golfers period) in Massachusett's history, and as a leader of the Women's Golf Association of Massachusetts (WGAM) and the Francis Ouimet Scholarship Fund. She is deeply involved with the New England PGA, and is regularly listed among the most powerful people in golf in Massachusetts.

A former Mount Holyoke College Golf Team Captain, Tobin has been a dominant player in WGAM competitions. She won the WGAM's highest level event, its Association Championship, in 1988, 1991-95, and 2000 - a record seven times. The Women's Player of the Year Award is named after her, and she has won the title three times. She also won the 1990 New England Women's Amateur and has played in 17 USGA events, reaching the quarter finals in back-to-back events - the 1990 Mid-Amateur and the 1991 US Amateur.

According to information provided by the Ouimet Scholarship Fund, she served as President of the WGAM in 1994-95. She was the founder of the Massachusetts Womens Open Championship in 1990 and the co-founder, along with Jane Frost, of the WGAM Junior Scholarship Fund, Inc. in 1986. The Junior Scholarship Fund gives need based scholarships to girls who participate in WGAM junior events. She also helped establish and has been a long-time committee person for the WGAM/Dolly Sullivan Scholarship, one of the top Ouimet Fund endowed awards for females.

Ms. Tobin has been a member of the Ouimet Funds Board of Directors since 1998, serving on several commitees, including as Chair of The Funds Scholarship Committee since 2004. She was President of The Fund from 2002-2004. Her period as Ouimet President was a very busy one, as according to the information provided by the Ouimet Scholarship Fund it marked the beginning of The Fund's move to Golf House, the release ot Mark Frost's book, "The Greatest Game Ever Played" and Ouimet efforts to promote it, as well as arrangements for the Disney movie of the same title. As Scholarship Committee Chair she has overseen several important policy directions and a major increase of annual awards from &700,000 per year to a planned $1 million in 2008-2009. She has also been very involved in the establishment of the Women's Division of the Francis Ouimet Memorial Tournament.

According to published biographical information, Ms. Tobin began her distinguished golf career at Thomson Club in North Reading. After completing her degree at Mt. Holyoke in 1979, she studied at Suffolk University Law School, graduating in 1983. She has used her legal acumen in her various capacities with the WGAM and Ouimet Scholarship Fund. She has also been legal counsel to the New England PGA, especially during the 2003-2005 Presidency ol her husband, Jim, Head Professional at Bellevue Golf Club. Ms. Tobin is a member at Bellevue and the Thomson Club. She maintains a Law Practice specializing in General Practice and Corporate Non-Profit.

It would be hard to find someone associated with golf in Massachusetts who has not heard of Woburn native Dick Connolly.

Connolly is consiered by many to be the Ouimet Fund's Most Valuable Player, and also helps scores of other charitable causes in New England. The "giving back to golf" credo is, as he says, one of the greatest mot

Movie Reviews

by Paul Feely

"THE DARK KNIGHT"

"THE DARK KNIGHT" is just that. It is a dark, depressing look at the state of society. No, it is not your typical summer movie; but it is a movie that should not be missed.

"THE DARK KNIGHT"
GRADE: ****

Let's say this up front - "The Dark Knight" is just that, a dark, depressing look at the state of society. It's not your average superhero movie, and not necessarily one that you want the kiddies taking in on a Saturday afternoon.

The much anticipated sequel to 2005's Batman Begins sees Christian Bale return as the Caped Crusader and his alter ego Bruce Wayne, but even someone as adept at crimefighting as Batman can't prevent this movie from being stolen by Heath Ledger.

His electrifying performance as The Joker gives us the most menacing appearance on screen since Hannibal Lecter (this reviewer woke up this morning with the sound of Ledger's maniacal cackling still playing loudly in his head).

The late Ledger steals the movie, which opens with a bank robbery that sets in motion the criminal rampage of his character.

He may look like Bozo on a bad hair day, but he is clearly in control of his scheme to leave Gotham City in need of a hero, and then destroying whomever shows up to fill those shoes.

Ledger's Joker isn't doing it for the money, and therefore there's no negotiating, no reasoning with him. He hates society and it's so-called morality, and knows creating chaos and destruction is the only thing he can rely on.

Bale's Bruce Wayne still enjoys his nightly flights and fights as the Batman, but has thoughts of one day hanging up the cowl and letting someone else save Gotham from itself, namely dashing District Attorney Harvey Dent (Aaron Eckhart).

Bale is very good, playing Wayne as the deeply troubled hero who is always second-guessing whether or not what he is doing is helping more than hurting the citizens of his beloved city.

He has futuristic gadgets even James Bond would envy, an array of fast cars and motorcycles - which he puts to good use, because in Gotham these days, there are numerous gangs to contend with as well as the main crime syndicate heads.

The transition of Harvey Dent to evil Two Face is probably the most interesting aspect of the story. Eckhart's performance is both moving and fearful. And the subplot 'love triangle' between him, Bruce Wayne and Bruce's girlfriend Rachel Dawes (Maggie Gyllenhaal) is believable.

Gary Oldman returns to give a good performance as Lt. Jim Gordon, as does Oscar winner Morgan Freeman to his role as Lucius Fox. As always, Michael Caine's slips into his performance as Alfred the Butler like he's visiting an old friend.

But this is Heath's movie. There's no doubt that the screen comes alive when Ledger appears. Both disturbing and mesmerizing, you can't help but feel the loss of this great actor while watching his performance.

It's a dark and sometimes violent epic (don't miss the Joker's "magic trick"), but thankfully, there are some moments of comic relief.

The Dark Knight is head and shoulders above other comic book movies this summer like The Incredible Hulk, Iron Man, and Hancock.

Batman is a complex character, and is subject to the same rules of reality that the rest of us succumb to - he doesn't always win the fight, and doesn't always save the girl.

And how many times have you left the theater thinking more about the villain than an iconic hero? 'The Dark Knight' is not your typical summer movie, and should not be missed.

"HELLBOY II: THE GOLDEN ARMY"
GRADE: ***

He might not be as well-known as other superheroes like Superman and Spider-Man, but "Hellboy" has a dedicated group of fans who've embraced the demon-turned-savior and made him into a box-office money machine.

Though the first installment of the series only broke even in the United States, it did remarkably well on home video and overseas, so much so that director Guillermo Del Toro convinced the powers that be at Universal to give the hero another shot at the big screen.

Del Toro's imagination can be seen throughout "Hellboy 2: The Golden Army" as it is populated by a vast number of mythical monstrosities that look like creatures from the cutting room floor of his last film, "Pan's Labyrinth".

This time, Hellboy (Ron Perlman), pyrotechnic Liz Sherman (Selma Blair), and empath Abe Sapien (Doug Jones) are assigned to stop Prince Nuada (Luke Goss), a royal son who sets out to reclaim territory above ground for the magical creatures he rules beneath the earth.

He has broken a centuries-old true and intends to awaken the golden army, an unstoppable mystical, mechanical force that can only be stirred when all three pieces of a golden crown are put together.

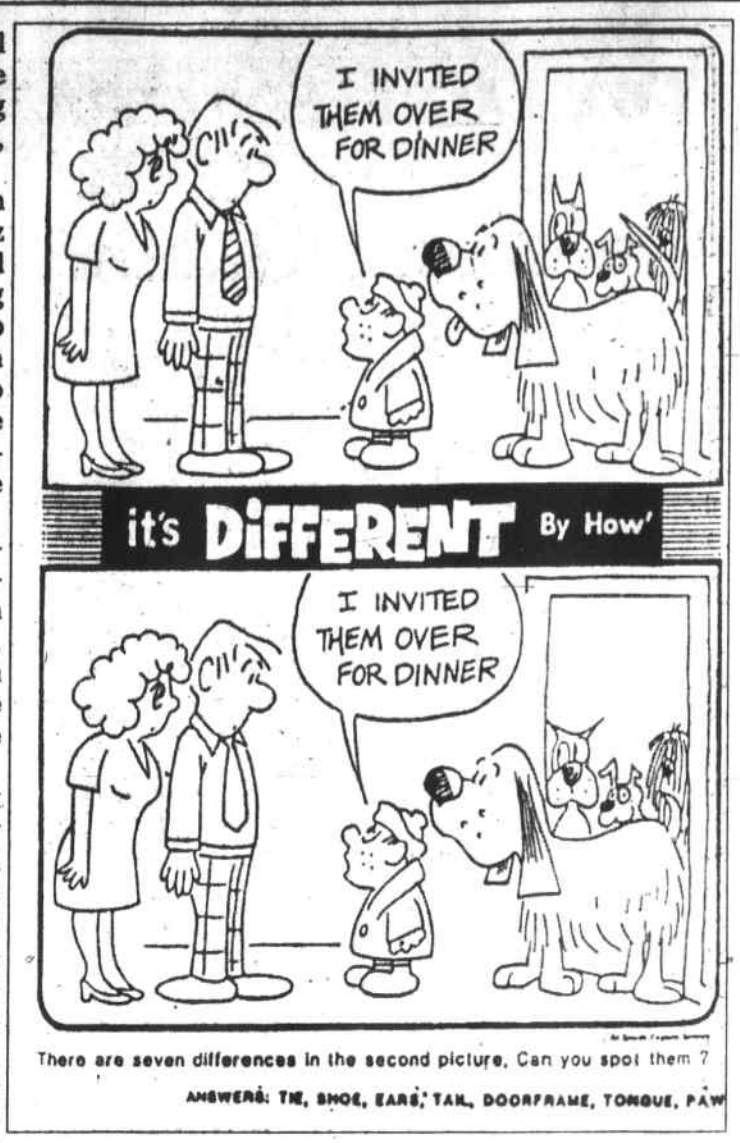

The expected comic book mayhem ensues with Hellboy spitting out one-liners and leaving destruction in his wake. However, what makes the film so entertaining is the interaction between the heroes, whose flaws come to life. Hellboy and Liz are having trouble adjusting to living together while Abe falls for Princess Nuala, Nuada's sister.

Without question, del Toro's a visionary and he lets his imagination run loose in the underworld where most of the films second hour takes place. Trolls, talking tumors, malevolent tooth fairies and a host of other indescribable creatures crowd the screen and make the film a visual delight.

The film could have been a bit shorter, but just when the movie is ready to become mediocre we're treated to the odd sight of a drunk Hellboy or the strangest duet of Barry Manilow's "I Can't Smile Without You," you can imagine. These moments of whimsy make "The Golden Army' worthwhile and reminds us that even a demon can suffer from a broken heart.

"HANCOCK"
GRADE: **

A movie about a superhero who is surly, cynical, disdainful of his public, has anger management issues and is an alcoholic - and who would later be redeemed and transformed - would make for an interesting, if unusual feature.

"Hancock" starts out as that film but doesn't follow it through to the end.

Will Smith's summer blockbuster fails because the filmmakers - director Peter Berg and screenwriters Vy Vincent Ngo and Vince Gilligan - lacked confidence in their concept. To broaden its appeal, they crammed in other subplots to make the movie more audience-friendly.

Basically, they were catering to moviegoers who expect certain things in a Will Smith release - especially an abundance of action and special effects as well as some humor. Maybe they feared making Smith's Hancock too unlikable because it might offend his fans.

"Hancock" is not a bad movie, just not what it could have been, and flies off in too many directions.

The story starts out promising enough: Smith's Hancock is endowed with super powers, but he'd rather just lie around and drink Scotch.

When he does use his powers, he creates more mayhem and destruction. While capturing bad guys, he causes millions of dollars in damages - wrecking buildings, highways, police cars - anything that happens to get in his way.

After he saves an idealistic p.r. man, played by Jason Bateman, his world begins to change.

Bateman's Ray Embrey convinces Hancock to allow him to make over his image so that the public will embrace him.

Wonderful idea. Too bad it's not the storyline for the entire movie.

Without giving too much away, the plot goes off in another direction with the introduction of Ray's wife, Mary, played by Oscar-winner Charlize Theron.

"Hancock's" biggest problem is a lack of focus. It suffers from cinematic ADD, jumping from action-adventure to comedy to drama to superhero spoof as if trying to be all things for all audiences.

The movie runs about 92 minutes, leaving one wondering how many unanswered questions would have been resolved by what ended up on the cutting room floor.

About the Towns

by Phyllis Nissen

SHAPESHIFTING ALL AROUND

Yippee! Reading

"The town's new Trails Committee is beginning to take shape, after the Board of Selectmen recently voted to appoint several members to the newly-formed group," notes the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Receiving unanimous approval from the Selectmen for appointment to the committee were Charles Donnelly Moran, Thomas Gardiner, Joan Hoyt and David Williams.

"The exact wording of the language regarding the committee is as follows:

"2.2.8 Policy Establishing a Reading Trails Committee (RTC)

"Based on the recommendation of the Northern Area Greenway Committee, there is hereby established a five (5) member Reading Trail Committee (RTC) which will assume the responsibilities of planning, developing, and maintaining present and future trails in the Town of Reading. The goal is for the Town to create and maintain a connected, well coordinated system of trails to serve the residents of the community. The RTC will undertake the following responsibilities.

"Make recommendations to the Conservation Commission, Town Forest Committee, and Recreation Committee regarding development, operation, use, and maintenance of trails crossing lands under the jurisdiction of these bodies. The RTC shall have no rule-making authority itself.

"Act as a liaison between the Town of Reading and the Reading Open Land Trust, Friends of Reading Recreation, Walkable Reading, Scout groups, and other youth and community groups with respect to development, operation, use and maintenance of trails.

"Coordinate and manage an Adopt-a-Trail program, if appropriate, for the maintenance of trails or portions thereof...."

Hmmmn, Burlington

"The town will get its first Subway sandwich shop operation, following a recent unanimous vote by the Planning Board, whose members' prime concern about the application was litter," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The Subway will not stand alone as a business: it will be in a section of the One Stop Mart at 31 Winn St., near the Woburn line.

"Local attorney Thomas F. Murphy, Jr., represents the applicant, Arvu Parth Radhe Dada, LLC. The manager of the One Stop Mart is Ramchandra Parekh.

"Murphy told the Planning Board Parekh 'is looking to expand' the business. He added the Subway 'will be essentially a counter and run in conjunction with his convenience store, and it will not be a separate entity.'

"'This is a fairly straightforward proposal,' Murphy said.

"'Our intent is to watch out for litter control,' said Planning Director, Tony Fields.

"This is for take-out purposes only,' Fields went on to say. 'There will be no cooking on the site.... The proposed use is able to be accommodated for based on the zoning use. There is no physical change proposed to the exterior.

"'There is just re-heating, no cooking,' Murphy said....

"Diane Viscione, owner of the building that accommodates One Stop Mart and other businesses there, says she believes she does her part to keep the litter down on the site, paying someone '20 hours a month' to clean the lot.

"She said, 'My tenants pitch in as well....'

"'People will just throw the trash everywhere,' Viscione said. 'I have the biggest lot and it is accessible to trucks, I have pictures of town trucks.... Not all of them leave their trash, but a significant amount do.'

"Viscione went on to say that 'landscaping trucks empty their landscaping trash' there.

"'People don't care,' Viscione stated, adding that she tells people not to leave litter on the property, but the tone of their response is 'What are you going to do about it?'"

Check it out... Wilmington

"Commercial developments are expected to bring many changes to Wilmington," notes the "Wilmington Town Crier."

"Developers of Wilmington Crossing, the 70,000 square foot shopping center located at 275 Main Street across from Wilmington Plaza, are looking forward to the end of the construction phase of their project.

"According to Michael Coffman, Vice President of Coffman Realty, Inc., they will soon - weather permitting - complete the outside construction and expect that some of the tenants will be taking possession of their space to being the internal build-out phase. Coffman expects that residents should see signs of businesses opening or preparing to open their doors.

"There was still space available in the center, which currently has committed tenants that include Staples, Starbucks, Kendra & Anthony's, Danvers Bank, Sleepy's, Dollar Tree, Pearle Vision, D'Angelo's, La Chic Nail and Skincare, Fantastic Sams and Ruby Tuesday.

"Meanwhile, work is just getting underway for the redevelopment of Wilmington Plaza right across the street. According to John Matthews, the real estate representative for Valley Properties, Inc., the project is expected to take 18 to 24 months to complete. The new plaza will include a standalone CVS located at the north end of the lot, a standalone Sovereign Bank at the south end of the lot, and a new shopping center to be constructed directly behind the existing shopping plaza.

"The two standalone buildings, to house CVS and Sovereign Bank, will be constructed as the first phase of the project. The construction of the new shopping plaza will then take place, followed by the demolition - in stages - of the existing plaza....

"'We appreciate the customers' patience with the redevelopment process. We'll do everything we can to make it as convenient as possible for shoppers during the transition phases.'

"A third development in town anticipates completion shortly. The Courtyard at Wilmington Commons, located directly across the street from Rotary Park at 36 Middlesex Avenue, will consist of seven residential townhouses, four garden style 3-bedroom units, and one commercial office space of 2,200 square feet...."

Spirit of Golf

toes of any charity and one he quotes often.

Connolly was one of The Fund's scholarship recipients 51 years ago, and reportedly considers it one of the proudest moments of his life. He started as a caddie at age eight at Woburn Country Club and then joined the course superintendent crew. He worked 15 years there and the scholarship helped him go on to the College of the Holy Cross.

"Other than my mother and father, golf has been the most influential thing in my life," he is quoted as saying in a recent Ouiemt Scholarship Fund newsletter. He spoke of people he caddied for and learned from, the financial Ouimet help and being associated with Mr. Ouimet, and playing competitive golf in college. "So, you see, I really love the game and owe so much to it," he stated.

Mr. Connolly started his career with Ford Motor Corporation after receiving a Masters degree at Babson College. He later left Ford to pursue opportunities in the financial services sector as a stockbroker and financial advisor, and is now a leader at Morgan Stanley, and has been ranked as one of the top ten overall brokers in the country.

Over the years Mr. Connolly has personally been the greatest donor to The Ouimet Fund, and served as President, Director, and on many committees. Here are a few of his contributions to The Fund:

In 2000, the Ouimet Fund created an award for someone who has given great service to The Fund, and appropriately named it the "Richard F. Connolly, Jr. Distinguished Service Award."

"I've been fairly fortunate in my life, and have tried to give back to the Ouimet Fund and other charities. I've served with many great people on the Ouimet Board. •We've sent many kids to college that maybe couldn't have gone, or to a school they couldn't have afforded otherwise, and it's been very rewarding," he concluded.

The Ouimet Scholarship Fund is named after Francis Ouimet, who is credited with initiating the enormous boom in American golf with his Cinderella upset victory in the 1913 US Open. Prior to his triumph, relatively few people played golf in the United States.

According to profile information about the fund, the Ouimet scholarship is unique in that it is renewable for up to four years. Ouimet awards range from $1,500 to $7,500 per year, depending on financial need and ranking in our competitive evaluation process. The value of the award over four years can be $10,000 to $25,000 or more. Over 4,400 young people have received Ouimet scholarships, and many have gone on to high positions of leadership in business and professional careers.

The Francis Ouimet Scholarship Fund is a 501 (c) (3) organization. It is supported by contributions from golfers, clubs, corporations and golf organizations throughout Massachusetts. It is considered The Golf Charity of Massachusetts.

Back in May, Gary Player, long considered Golf's Greatest International Player was the guest speaker and honored with the 13th Francis Ouimet Award for Lifelong Contributions to Golf at the Francis Ouimet Scholarship Fund's 59th Annual Banquet at the Boston Convention & Exhibition Center in front of an estimated audience of 1,450. The Honorable Thomas M. Menino, Mayor of Boston, was Honorary Chairperson for the event.

•MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA QUESTION: Who was the oldest player to participate in the major league baseball All Star Game?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•BROTHERS BRUCE AND GREGG JOHNSON, LIFELONG READING RESIDENTS AND OWNERS OF LEE KIMBALL OF WINCHESTER, have announced the eighth annual David K. Johnson (DKJ) Foundation golf tournament. The tournament will be held on Monday, August 25, at The Georgetown Club's 18-hole, championship course in Georgetown.

This year's tournament is sponsored by Clarke Corporation of Milford, New England's exclusive distributor of luxury appliance brands from Sub-Zero, Wolf, ASKO, KWC, Best and Scotsman.

The foundation was created in honor and memory of their parents, David and Susan Johnson, to promote awareness and support for individuals and families affected by Alz-heimer's disease and other progressive dementia and recognition of the need for alternative non-institutional care and family-needed support.

David Johnson was diagnosed with progressive dementia at the age of 59. Several years ago he lived at Peter Sanborn Place and was the conduit to the services that they offer today.

Proceeds will support the Massachusetts Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association, the David & Susan Memorial Scholarship Fund awarded to a Reading Memorial High School student pursuing a career in health care or medicine and Reading's Sanborn Home Care, a non-profit home health care agency.

Any interested in learning more about these charities may visit www.dkjfoundation.org.

Previous year proceeds have helped Sanborn Home Care provide specialized training for their staff; their Urgent Respite Care Program for caregivers; helped cover the operational costs for their 14 passenger, wheel chair accessible van and kicked off their capital fund for the future expansion of Peter Sanborn Place.

This year Sanborn is earmarking the proceeds to purchase what is called The Camel (complete air moving elevating lift) an air powered lifting chair to raise someone from a lying to a sitting position at the touch of a button.

This lift will allow them to assist residents that have slipped off their chair or bed or have taken a safe fall. It will help in eliminating back injuries of staff and relieve the fire department from having to assist us in non-medical emergencies. Not to mention the comfort for the many residents that we attempt to haul up off the floor. The remaining proceeds will assist and support our continued benevolent culture of care.

The DKJ Foundation wants to help individuals in the community and the foundation needs your help. There are many ways to support the annual golf tournament. Please consider golfing, sponsoring a hole, attending the reception, or donating to the raffle.

For further information, call 781-838-6130.

PMC riders are between 15 and 85 years of age, come in all sizes, and are of different athletic abilities. Many riders are seasoned cyclists or tri-athletes, while others are PMC weekend warriors, having trained for this event alone. PMC cyclists are unified in the most important ways - they are driven to raise money for cancer research and they love the PMC.

The Pan-Massachusetts Challenge is a fully supported bike-a-thon — with food and water stops, mechanical and medical assistance, luggage transportation, and lodging — that runs through 46 cities and towns across Massachusetts. Two-day rides include the original 192-mile Sturbridge to Provincetown route; 180-mile Sturbridge-Bourne-Wellesley route; 163-mile Wellesley-Bourne-Provincetown route; or the 153-mile Wellesley-Bourne-Wellesley route. One-day riders cycle the 110-mile Sturbridge-Bourne route, the 84-mile Wellesley-Bourne route, or the 47-mile Wellesley-Wellesley Sunday loop. Cyclists are required to raise between $1,300 and $4,000 to ride in the PMC, depending on the chosen route, yet the average PMC cyclist raises more than $6,000. This commitment to the fundraising portion of the PMC journey is a testament to riders' dedication to the cause and their belief in the PMC mission.

Meet Javone

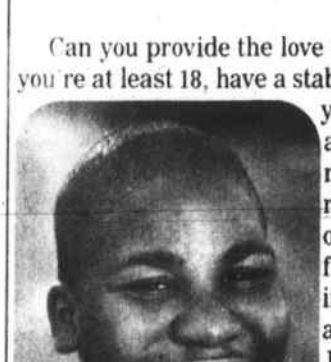

Javone is a kind, caring African-American boy with a great smile and an equally fun sense of humor. He is thoughtful of others and has good peer relationships. Javone's social worker is seeking an adoptive family in which Javone can continue to progress and reach his full potential.

Javone, 12, is generally a good student and wants to attend college when he gets older. In his spare time, he loves to play with his Gameboy. He also enjoys reading, watching the Disney channel, doing arts and crafts and playing board games. A non-competitive player, Javone plays for fun and doesn't mind when others also win. When he is active, Javone loves to swim.

Javone has experienced a lot of loss in his life and attends weekly therapy to address these issues. Javone currently lives in a foster home where he is doing well and willingly lends a hand with household chores. When limits need to be set, Javone is responsive.

Legally free for adoption, Javone is ready to find a single or two-parent family with a few siblings. He would do best if the children were close to his age or older. Javone will thrive with a patient, understanding family who will be committed to guiding him into adulthood.

Can you provide the love and stability that Javone needs? If you're at least 18, have a stable income, and room in your heart, you may be a perfect match to adopt a waiting child. You can be single, married, or partnered; GLBT; experienced or not; renters or homeowners. The process to adopt a child from foster care includes training, interviews, and home visits to make a good match. To learn more about Javone, and about adoption from foster care, call the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) at 617-54-ADOPT (617-542-3678) or visit www.mareinc.org.

For Home Repair:
Keep it simple, keep it 'Green'

How big is your footprint on the earth? America is going leaner and greener and so can you. Even if you can't afford to build a state of the art, environmentally correct new home or totally remodel the one you have to be more energy efficient, you can take some steps that will ease the drain on the earth's resources and your pocket book.

If you have a limited budget, address the most obvious energy "thieves" in your home. Energy efficient heating and air conditioning units and appliances are investments that pay off in the long run with lower energy bills. So when they break, replace them with Energy Star-rated models. If you can't afford to swap out those single pane, air-leaking windows for energy efficient units, at least seal them. A low cost and earth friendly practice is to conserve water by repairing leaky fixtures and installing low flow showerheads, faucets and toilets. And start using energy efficient and increasingly affordable lighting.

One thing that we can all do right now is ease the pressure on our landfills by fixing what we have with earth friendly products. The old myth that if it is "green," it's not strong enough to do the job, is no longer true. Improved technology is bringing us high performing green products. We also need to look for green products that couple performance with versatility. We can no longer afford a garage or cabinet full of "specialty" products that are designed to do only one thing.

In fact, the easiest way to make our footprint smaller on the planet is to simplify by choosing versatile green products that can provide a variety of high quality solutions to home upkeep.

Glue is a good example. Most households have at least six types of glues and sealants: Different glues for different materials, glues that seal, glues that are water resistant or UV resistant, glues that require special clamping, glues that are paintable and sandable. The list goes on and our shelves and landfills fill up with spent tubes and packaging from these "specialty" glues, most of them with a high level of toxicity.

Look for products like Amazing EcoGlue(R) -- a water- based, odor-free adhesive for the home that is able to bond with industrial strength to almost any material indoors and out. Amazing EcoGlue(R) manages to outperform even the popular urethane glues that foam when applied. Yet it is environmentally safe (less than
